*Annual lost work days represent the cost your company pays each year for work that is never completed by temporaries, the depressed worker and/or co-workers.

These estimates assume that 20% of your depressed workforce will participate in depression care management at an average annual cost of $800/per participating employee. These estimates also assume that employees who participate remain with the firm for two years after they begin the program, as both costs and benefits of the program will be lower for transient employees. These estimates do not take into account additional savings from improved team performance. Companies who wish to incorporate these and other factors into consideration should contact Donna Marshall at (303)922-0939 or visit our website: www.caremanagementfordepression.org.
